THE

Book of Common Prayer.

ILLUMINATED AND ILLUSTRATED.

OF the various Works which are capable of Pictorial Decoration and Illustration, none seem more appropriately adapted for that object than our admirable BOOK OF COMMON PRAYER. One of the first exercises of the painter's pencil, on the revival of the Arts in the early ages of Christianity, was to furnish embellishments for copies of the Holy Scriptures, Books of Devotion, Missals, Psalters, and the like, and some of the oldest specimens of the kind known were produced in the British Islands, during the ages styled dark. Such works, however, from the great cost of producing them, have hitherto been confined to public libraries and a few wealthy proprietors. The resources of modern art, and improved mechanical contrivances, render it practicable, in the present day, to produce a work of this kind at a moderate price; and it is hoped that an Edition of the Common Prayer, adorned with good taste and propriety, may not be unwelcome to the Public.

The Embellishments of the present Edition consist of—

I.—NEARLY THREE HUNDRED DIFFERENT ORNAMENTAL BORDERS, SCROLLS, FOLIAGE, HEAD-PIECES, and VIGNETTES, and about SEVEN HUNDRED DIFFERENT ORNAMENTAL INITIALS, Original Designs, by OWEN JONES. Great care has been taken to avoid all questionable emblems.

II.—EIGHT ILLUMINATED TITLES, Designed and Executed by OWEN JONES:—

GENERAL TITLE.
MORNING PRAYER.
EVENING PRAYER.
THE LITANY.

PRAYERS AND THANKSGIVINGS.
COLLECTS, EPISTLES, AND GOSPELS.
THE HOLY COMMUNION.
PSALMS.

HAND-BOOK FOR LONDON;

Past and Present.

By PETER CUNNINGHAM.

"The old Lord Treasurer Burleigh, if any one came to the Lords of the Council for a Licence to Travel, he would first examine him of England; if he found him ignorant would bid him stay at home, and know his own Country first."—The Compleat Gentleman, by Henry Peacham. 4to, 1622.

THE arrangement throughout is alphabetical, and great care has been taken to introduce every church, building, street, square, lane, and alley of interest—to give the origin of the names of places, and to distinguish, as far as possible, the residences of remarkable men.

It has been the compiler's wish to make his book not only interesting to the London visitor, but useful to the student of our History and the admirer of English Poetry. With this view he has introduced extended notices of—

Old St. Paul's,
Old London Bridge,
The First and Second Royal

 Newton's house and Observatory in St.

A HAND-BOOK FOR LONDON—CONTINUED.

Martin's Street ; Hogarth's house on the east side, and Sir Joshua Reynolds' house on the west side of Leicester Square ; Dr. Johnson's house in Gough Square, and the site of his house in Bolt Court, Fleet Street ; Lord Byron's residence in Piccadilly ; the house in which Gibbon wrote his Defence of his "Decline and Fall" ; the house in which Boswell, the biographer of Johnson, died ; the house in which Horace Walpole died ; the house in which Thomas Gainsborough lived ; the house in which Wilkie painted his "Blind Fiddler ;" the studios of Flaxman and Chantrey, and the residence of Sir Thomas Lawrence.

Lanes, made remarkable by some one interesting circumstance :— Pudding Lane, where the Great Fire of London began, and Pie Corner, where it ended ; Rose Alley, Covent Garden, where Dryden was waylaid and beaten by bullies hired by the Earl of Rochester ; and Cock Lane, rendered remarkable by the still popular story of "The Cock Lane Ghost."

The Burial-places of eminent individuals are pointed out wherever the writer's researches have enabled him so to do. He need not refer on this occasion to the list of illustrious persons interred within Westminster Abbey and St. Paul's. He may mention, however, the names of a few who are buried in the different churches, churchyards, and cemeteries of London :—

Gower, the poet, and contemporary of Chaucer.

Gawain Douglas, the Poet-Bishop of Dunkeld,

Tom D'Urfey,

Nell Gwynne,

Cocker, the Arithmetician,

Hoyle, who wrote on Whist.

Existing London will occupy more than half of the present Hand-Book, and great care will be taken to point out the chief objects of interest in Painting, Sculpture, and Architecture. Westminster Abbey and St. Paul's, The Tower, The National Gallery, and The British Museum will be found particularly and carefully described. A Chapter of General Information will be prefixed, and the Volume wound up by a Chronology of Historical Events, Local Alterations, and Local Improvements.

As this work from its very nature must necessarily be imperfect, the author is desirous of receiving any communications and suggestions that may make it less so.

THE
MARLBOROUGH LETTERS AND DESPATCHES,
FROM 1702 TO 1712.
RECENTLY DISCOVERED AT WOODSTOCK.

By SIR GEORGE MURRAY, G.C.B. Three Vols. 8vo, 3/.

"Sir George Murray has performed his task in the manner to be expected from his own accomplishments as a gentlemanly scholar, a statesman, and a high military authority. His summaries of events and general views at particular periods, coincident with the dates of the correspondence, are clear and comprehensive; and having stored our minds from these little treasuries of a few pages, we start again with renewed knowledge and appetite for the details of the ensuing letters, till we arrive at another stage, and are then enlightened as before. The character of Marlborough will be much enhanced and exalted by their publication, and the grasp of his intellect proven to be far more extended than has hitherto been allowed even by favourable writers."—Literary Gazette.

"These Letters and Despatches afford honourable proofs of his consummate abilities as a diplomatist and a statesman. Although the personal interest of these volumes is not equal to their historical importance, they contain many traits and incidents illustrative of a period to which Englishmen have been accustomed to refer with more pride than discrimination, and they unfold the secret spring of some events which hitherto ranked among the disputed, if not the unsolved problems of our annals."—Athenæum.

"Exhibits in a striking degree the prudence, foresight, and patience of Marlborough, and throws a new light upon his character, raising him higher than he stood before. Judging him not only from what he did, but what he would have done had the allies but followed his perfectly practicable advice, we are inclined to place him at the head of modern captains—as combining the caution and safety of Wellington with the rapidity and dazzling movements of Napoleon. * * * * The volumes have been edited with great care and pains by Sir George Murray, and on the principle to withhold nothing which could throw light upon any transaction worthy of notice, or upon the character of Marlborough himself; whilst he has aimed at offering—especially to military men—as much instruction as possible in the management of large and difficult affairs, from the example of so great a master. He has also prefixed an introductory view of the state of Europe on the opening of the War of Succession, and has at fitting opportunities given an account of the progress of affairs in Italy and the Peninsula."—Spectator.

"This collection of Letters is rich in material, and will be found a valuable acquisition to the military history of our country. It can hardly be necessary to remark, that in the exercise of a sound discretion in the accomplishment of his task, Sir George Murray has rendered full justice to his subject, and conferred no slight obligation upon the Army (to whom with so much propriety the work is dedicated), and upon the public at large."—Naval and Military Gazette.

"None of the biographers of the Duke had access to these volumes, which it is clear must have been set apart from the other manuscripts of Blenheim by some capricious fancy of the Duchess, and so withheld from discovery till now. They could not have had a better editor than Sir George Murray; rarely could they have found one so good. His clear arrangement and occasional historical elucidations, are of the greatest help and service to the reader. Military men should read these volumes with peculiar interest—Marlborough's mind is in them."—Examiner.

HAWKSTONE,

A Tale of and for England in the Year 184—.

"There is a vast deal of clever writing in 'HAWKSTONE.' The opening is particularly good and agreeable, and throughout the book there is lively portraiture and a free and flowing style."—Examiner.

"The author of 'HAWKSTONE' is obviously a scholar and a gentleman, and is a keen observer and vivid describer of such life as has passed before him, with a touch of causticity in his temperament that is subdued by good nature, unless he has to handle the actors in religious or political party. In disquisitional passages he always exhibits keenness of thought and often profundity. A close, finished, and powerful composition attends him throughout."—Spectator.

"'HAWKSTONE' is said to contain a picture of 'distracted and degraded England' within the last five years. The scenes and situations are drawn throughout with a picturesque force, of no common or every-day occurrence, and the dialogues are good, the humour excellent, and the satire to the point—caustic, it is true, but well merited, and with more of sorrow than of anger in its composition."—Historical Register.

2 Vols. fcap. 8vo. 12s.

REMARKS UPON RECENT COMMERCIAL LEGISLATION,

Suggested by the Expository Statement of the Revenue, from Customs, and other Papers, lately submitted to Parliament.

By RIGHT. HON. W. E. GLADSTONE, M.P. for Newark.

Second Edition. 8vo, 2s. 6d.

THE DIPLOMATIC CORRESPONDENCE

THE RIGHT HONOURABLE RICHARD HILL,

ENVOY TO THE COURT OF SAVOY, IN THE REIGN OF QUEEN ANNE;

By REV. WILLIAM BLACKLEY, B.A.

"Mr. Hill's Correspondence, though not set forth with any such view, is a supplement to the 'MARLBOROUGH DESPATCHES,' and a needful explanation of them on some material points."—Examiner.

"The Letters, &c., in these volumes illustrate and receive illustration from the work to which we just called attention ('THE MARLBOROUGH DESPATCHES.') The five volumes, in fact, might have been published as one work, and both are eminently acceptable for their elucidation of history. A thousand particulars of the Ten Years of Glory which brightened Anne's reign, will be found in these sterling publications, of a kind of which we should much like to see many more, to redeem our deteriorated literature."—Literary Gazette.

2 Vols. 8vo, 26s.

LIGHT IN DARKNESS, OR CHURCHYARD THOUGHTS.

BEING SUGGESTIONS FOR EPITAPHS AND HEADSTONES.

By JOSEPH SNOW.

"An illustrated volume of neat verses and drawings, designed for epitaphs and ornaments, and as substitutes for the 'shapeless sculpture' and 'uncouth rhymes,' now to be found in Protestant burial-grounds. Mr. Snow's taste is refined and elegant, and his suggestions are put forth modestly."—Athenæum.

With Twenty Woodcuts. Post 8vo, 10s. 6d.

THE PRACTICAL GEOLOGY AND ANCIENT ARCHITECTURE OF IRELAND.

By GEORGE WILKINSON, Esq., ARCHITECT.

"The value of scientific knowledge, when applied to practical purposes, is strikingly shown in this curious and useful volume. Mr. Wilkinson, impressed with the importance of geological science to the architect, has investigated the strata of Ireland, with a view to ascertain the qualities of the different rocks and earths, with reference to their uses as building materials. The most valuable part of the work is a detailed account of the quality, distribution, use and cost of the various materials for building found in every county in Ireland."—Spectator.

"The author has evinced in the present work a degree of scientific taste and discernment, which must have eminently qualified him to take advantage of the opportunities he possessed; and the work is one which must be perused with profit by every architect and engineer."—Freeman's Journal.

With Seventeen Plates and Seventy-two Woodcuts. Royal 8vo, 28s.

ESSAYS ON THE CONDUCT OF LIFE.

By GEORGE LONG, Esq.

"The views are sound, rational, and indicate a juste milieu feeling, neither too lax or too rigid. The style is plain; and the subjects, coming home to men's business and bosoms, impart interest to the book."—Spectator.

"Mr. Long has, with much experience and observation, discussed many important subjects connected with social, public and religious life."—Literary Gazette.

"The great merit of these Essays is the earnestness of manner which characterises them. The plan is comprehensive, embracing every relation in life—the precepts excellent, and the morality of the loftiest and purest kind."—Atlas.

Post 8vo, 6s.

JOURNAL OF A RESIDENCE IN THE WEST INDIES.

By M. G. LEWIS, Esq.

"These highly amusing stories of actual Jamaica life."—Quarterly Review.

"Lewis' racy and amusing sketches of Negro life"—Edinburgh Weekly Register.

"Depicting, in familiar and graphic terms, West Indian life, when slavery was in its high day."—Nottingham Journal.

Post 8vo, 2s. 6d.

SKETCHES OF PERSIAN LIFE AND MANNERS.

By SIR JOHN MALCOLM.

"Sir John Malcolm is a perfect master in the delineation of character. With a few bold strokes he gives life and expression to his personages, and with the utmost ease and apparent faithfulness portrays both individual and national characteristics. The language, the literature, the customs, the manners, the superstitions of Persia are familiar to him. These superior qualifications, along with the delicious scraps of poetry and prose, fable and philosophy, which are scattered through the work, serve to make the Sketches of Persia one of the most instructive and delightful books in the language."—Atlas.

"No one can read 'Sketches of Persia' (by Sir John Malcolm), without feeling that the author has made a valuable addition to our stock of knowledge. New and important views of the Persians as a nation are here presented with all the interest, without the tendency to caricature, of our amusing friend Hajji Baba."—Quarterly Review.

A New Edition. Post 8vo, 5s.

ON THE REGULATION OF CURRENCIES;

AND THE WORKING OF THE NEW BANK CHARTER ACT.

By JOHN FULLARTON, Esq. Second Edition, enlarged. 8vo, 7s. 6d.

"The volume is one of great merit, and ought to be in the hands of all who interest themselves in the subject. It is one of the ablest which the discussions of Sir Robert Peel's Bank Bill have produced."—Scotsman.

"With the single exception of the 'History of Prices,' no work has appeared so well calculated to suggest important reflections and considerations on these subjects, or which will so amply repay the trouble of a careful perusal."—Economist.

MEMOIRS OF FATHER RIPA,

DURING THIRTEEN YEARS' RESIDENCE AT THE COURT OF CHINA.

"The combined singularity of the facts, and the mode of narration, render this as curious a book as any that has appeared, not excepting 'Borrow's Bible in Spain.'"—Spectator.

Post 8vo, 2s. 6d.

LIFE IN NEW SOUTH WALES.

By MRS. MEREDITH.

"This unpretending little book—one of the autumn issues of Mr. Murray's Colonial and Home Library—has, by rare mischance, been hidden under the heavy and dull ware with which that season is apt to burden our library table. But Mrs. Meredith's sense and sprightliness were sure to bring her to light. As Miss Twamley, she was known for a writer of elegant poetry, and picturesque botanical works. Here she takes a pleasant place among the company of travellers, who bid fair to beat rougher men out of the field."—Athenæum.

Post 8vo, 2s. 6d.

"One of the most practically useful books we have seen on the subject."—British Critic.

"No housekeeper ought to be without this book, which is adapted to every grade of society—the rich, the middle classes, and the poor."—Durham Advertiser.

"In point of excellence as to cookery, and economy in expenditure, leaves no room to any rival."—Keane's Bath Journal.

"The CELEBRATED WORK OF MRS. RUNDELL, which has now so long been the standard work of reference in every private family in English society."—Worcestershire Guardian.

*** Of this POPULAR COOKERY BOOK, upwards of 200,000 Copies have been sold.

A DICTIONARY OF
GREEK AND ROMAN BIOGRAPHY AND MYTHOLOGY.

EDITED BY WILLIAM SMITH, LL.D.

Publishing Monthly. To be completed in Three Volumes.

"There is no need of pronouncing any formal eulogium on this new Classical Dictionary, for in fact it is the only one with any pretensions to the name in our language; and as such it must form part of the library of every student who desires to become acquainted with the mind of antiquity."—Athenæum.

Vol. I. 8vo, 36s.

A DICTIONARY OF GREEK &amp; ROMAN ANTIQUITIES.

EDITED BY WILLIAM SMITH, LL.D.

"We do not pretend to have examined this Dictionary throughout; but the articles which we have consulted appear to us admirably done; they are terse in style, and pregnant, yet not cumbrously so, with accurate knowledge; the best and latest authorities are constantly cited. It was a work much wanted, will be invaluable to the young student, and as a book of reference will be most acceptable on the library table of every scholar."—Quarterly Review.

With numerous Illustrations on Wood. 8vo, 36s.
